VIDEO STYLE FAQ'S

Shooting Style Breakdown: Choosing the video style that is best for you.

A “shooting style” often refers to the type of camera movement or narrative focus of videography: a shooting style helps set the tone of both unedited and edited event coverage footage.

Some clients may prefer handheld camera movement; others prefer tripod or still event coverage; many a mix of both. The emotional tone of a video is often produced by what subjects are being captured, and the shooting style.

Intimate or candid event coverages often includes vlog/ behind the scenes event video styles often are handheld, organic capturing of “the moment”.

Corporate event coverage often includes stationary, clean coverage, with little to no camera movement.

Creative video coverage may focus more on the visually striking elements of the event (i.e. special details of the event, glamour shots, etc.).

Creative video coverage is recommended for branded events, weddings, fashion shows and influencers.
